A Note from League of Women Voters of Washington County

We elect officials to advocate for us and entrust them to make decisions that are in the best interest of the people they represent. It is vital to stay engaged with your officials and hold them accountable to their community, as well as let them know when you are happy with their work. Keep communication respectful and productive, even in times of disagreement. Officials are people too, and many officials in this guide receive little or no monetary compensation for their time. LWVWC thanks our Washington County public servants.

We hope this guide helps the Washington County community feel empowered to contact their officials. For information on how to find out which districts you live in, and tips on what to say when you call or write your representatives, visit lwvarwc.org/findmyofficial.

Special thanks to Rachel Allard for her work on this edition of the guide.

This guide is the result of volunteer work and generous donors. Please empowering voters and defending democracy by donating at
